Hayfin as a Shop

Who the customers are, what hurts them, what is on the shelves, why Hayfin's shop is different, and why customers keep coming back

How to read it: every orange box is the shop analogy; everything else is the real thing, with a source marker [S] that matches the source list at the back. Confidence tags: Confirmed (primary source or two outlets), Reported (one credible source), Inferred (my reasoning).

Before you start: ten things to assume

The background facts that make everything else make sense

Most confusion about firms like Hayfin comes from carrying assumptions over from ordinary shops. Read these ten first.

| # | Assumption | What it means in plain English |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | Hayfin does not mainly lend its own money. | It lends other people's money and charges a fee for doing it well. The "other people" are big institutions such as pension funds. Hayfin is the shopkeeper, not the owner of the stock. (It started in 2009 by lending its backers' money from its own balance sheet, then switched to running funds [S307].) |
| 2 | There are two kinds of customer. | Investors give Hayfin money to lend. Borrowers (mostly mid-sized European companies owned by private equity firms) take the loans. You are applying to the team that serves the investors, so in this document "customer" means investor unless it says otherwise. |
| 3 | The customer is an institution, not a person. | "All of our investors are institutional" [S305]. Hayfin's private credit takes "no retail capital" [S227]. Nobody walks in off the street with £1,000; the usual minimum is about $11.8m (roughly €10m) [S303]. |
| 4 | The "product" is a stream of loan repayments. | When an investor buys into a Hayfin fund, it is buying a share of hundreds of millions of euros of loans. The return is mostly interest the borrowers pay, not a share price going up. |
| 5 | You cannot return the product. | Money is locked in for years. Funds invest for three to four years, then collect repayments for another three to four, with two possible one-year extensions [S305]. Investors "are not entitled to have their interests in the respective Fund redeemed" [S301]. Think of it as a ten-year subscription you cannot cancel. |
| 6 | Customers pay over time, not at the till. | An investor commits an amount, and Hayfin calls it in chunks as loans are made. So "raising €15bn" means €15bn of promises, drawn over years. |
| 7 | The shop opens a new "edition" every few years. | Each fund is raised once and then closed to new money. The next one is a new edition: Direct Lending Fund I, II, III, IV, V [S79][S90][S88][S71]. Customers decide each time whether to buy the new edition. That decision is called a re-up. |
| 8 | Buying is slow and heavily checked. | Before committing, an investor sends long questionnaires (DDQs), often hires a consultant to vet the manager, and gets committee approval. One vendor estimates six to eighteen months for the process [S202] (low-weight source). Your future team does much of this paperwork. |
| 9 | Some numbers are private. | Hayfin is privately owned, so fees, recent fund returns and loss rates are not public. Where this document says "not public", that is the honest answer, and it is the right one to give in an interview too. |
| 10 | Dates matter. | Figures change fast. Assets under management (AUM) were about €33bn in March 2025 [S305] and about €40bn by mid-2026 [S224]. Always say the date with the number. |

FIVE WORDS YOU NEED

Fund: a pot of investors' money run by a manager for a fixed purpose and period. LP (limited partner): an investor in a fund (the customer). GP (general partner): the manager (Hayfin). Private credit: loans made by funds rather than banks, agreed one to one and held until repaid. Partner Solutions Group (PSG): Hayfin's investor-facing team, the shop front.

SECTION 1

The shop at a glance

What kind of shop Hayfin is, and how the analogy maps onto the real firm

THE ANALOGY IN ONE PARAGRAPH

Imagine a specialist wholesale food importer based in London that supplies hospitals, schools and airlines across the world. It does not run a supermarket for the public. Its buyers are professional procurement teams who need steady, reliable supply for years and who inspect everything. The importer's edge is that it has local buyers in every European market who know which farms are sound, it has a range from everyday staples to premium specialist goods, it packs the same produce in different ways for different customers, and when a farm has a bad harvest it sends its own team to fix the problem. That is Hayfin.

The Hayfin shop: who supplies it, what it sells, who buys

THE MONEY LOOP

1. Customers commit money to a fund for years. 2. The back room lends it to companies. 3. Companies pay interest and repay.
4. Hayfin passes the money back to customers, after taking a fee for running the shop and a share of profit above an agreed minimum.
5. Partner Solutions tells customers exactly how their money is doing every quarter. 6. If they are happy, they buy the next edition (re-up).

Fees not public. Norm: about 1% a year plus a profit share above a minimum return (Macfarlanes) [S104].

The analogy, piece by piece

| In a shop | At Hayfin | Why the comparison holds (and where it breaks) |
|---|---|---|
| Customers | Investors (LPs): pensions, insurers, sovereign wealth funds | They pay for something and expect value. Breaks: they hand over money first and get it back with interest later. |
| Suppliers / farms | Borrowing companies | The raw material is a loan to a company. Quality of the "farm" decides quality of the product. |

| In a shop | At Hayfin | Why the comparison holds (and where it breaks) |
|---|---|---|
| Buyers who choose stock | Origination and underwriting teams | They choose which loans to make. In 2012 Hayfin saw over 1,400 opportunities and made 60 investments [S306], so most produce is rejected. |
| Shelves and product lines | Strategies and funds | Direct Lending, Special Opportunities, Tactical Solutions, High Yield and Loans, CLOs, PE Solutions, Healthcare, Maritime, Real Estate [S327][S328]. |
| Packaging and sizes | "Wrappers": funds, SMAs, evergreen vehicles, a rated note feeder | The same loans can be sold in different packaging to suit each customer [S222]. |
| Shop front and staff | Partner Solutions Group | Sells, explains, answers questions, sends statements, keeps customers happy. |
| Product labels and spec sheets | Pitch books, DDQ answers, case studies | Must be accurate by law: "fair, clear and not misleading" [S49]. |
| Receipts and statements | Quarterly reports, CEO letter, audited accounts | Line-by-line, every quarter [S305]. |
| Warranty and repair service | Workout and legal team | When a loan goes wrong, Hayfin's own team fixes it [S307][S331]. |
| Branches | 13 offices; investor-only offices in Seoul and Dubai | Some branches only serve customers, not suppliers [S223][S275]. |
| Customer loyalty | Re-ups into the next fund edition | Loyalty is measured once every few years, in very large amounts. |
| Consumer magazine (e.g. Which?) | Investment consultants | They rate managers for many pension funds at once. A good rating unlocks many customers [S222]. |

SECTION 2

The target audience

Who the customers are, what each type needs, and what each one specifically wants from Hayfin

SHOP ANALOGY

A wholesale importer does not market to "everyone". It markets to hospital caterers, airline kitchens and school canteens, and it knows each one's menu, budget, rules and calendar. Hayfin is the same. It markets to a short list of very large professional buyers, and each type buys for a different reason.

Who Hayfin's customers are (share of AUM, 31 March 2025)

By type

Banks 6.9% · funds of funds 4.3% · family offices/endowments 4.0% · consultants 2.1%

By region

Asia 4.2% · Nordics 1.3% · Middle East 1.2%

Newer data (DLF V, 2026): over half of the new fund's money came from Europe, the Middle East and Africa, including 10% from the Middle East; the rest split broadly between North America and Asia-Pacific [S222]. Korea: close to €1bn managed for Korean investors [S239].

Bar widths to scale (100% = 650 px). Values read from rendered charts in [S305]; label-to-value mapping is high confidence but inferred.

Figure 2.1 · The customer base. Source: Hayfin UK Stewardship Code disclosure, October 2025 [S305]; DLF V debrief by the PSG co-heads, 22 September 2026 [S222].

Below, each customer type gets the same five questions: who they are, what is on their "shopping list", what hurts, what they buy at Hayfin, and what they specifically like about Hayfin. Where a reason is the author's reading rather than a stated fact, it is tagged.

Customer 1 · Pension funds (51.1% of AUM) — the anchor customer

Who they are. Funds that pay retirement income to workers, for decades. Public ones (state and city employees, teachers) and corporate ones. Public examples that have committed to Hayfin: Pennsylvania's public school pension, PSERS (€200m in 2012, up to $200m in 2016) [S306][S307]; Nashville's employee pension ($60m in 2013) [S309]; Vermont ($50m to the Tactical Solutions Evergreen Fund, reported August 2026) [S322].

> SHOP ANALOGY
> The hospital caterer: it must feed patients every day for the next 30 years, so it values steady, predictable supply over a one-off bargain.

| Shopping list | Steady income to meet pension payments; returns above what government bonds pay; diversification away from shares; a long time horizon that can live with money locked up. |
| Pain points | Promises to retirees are fixed, but markets move. Running dozens of managers is a big workload. Boards and trustees need simple, defensible reasons. Non-euro pensions face currency swings: PSERS's first Hayfin fund made 8.0% a year in euros but -2.6% in dollars by 2015 because the euro fell [S307]. |
| What they buy | Mostly the core Direct Lending fund; some take Special Opportunities or Tactical Solutions [S306][S307][S322]. Some hedge the currency: Nashville voted to "execute a Euro currency hedge" alongside its commitment [S309]. |
| What they like about Hayfin | (1) Senior, secured loans mostly paid in cash: the "staple" product [S71]. (2) The PSERS memo's point that Hayfin's dual role as an "8%+ and 15%+ lender" widens its deal flow [S307]. (3) Line-by-line quarterly reporting that a trustee board can read [S305]. (4) A seat on the fund's Advisory Board for selected investors [S305]. [Inferred: which of these each pension values most is not public.] |

Customer 2 · Insurers (19.5% of AUM) — the regulated customer

Who they are. Life insurers and other insurers that hold large investment portfolios to pay future claims. Two insurer-linked groups own minority stakes in Hayfin: Samsung Life (Korea) and AXA IM Prime [S75] [S74]. Hayfin's Fund Controller job supports "Solvency II reporting" [S333], the EU insurance capital rules.

> SHOP ANALOGY
> The airline kitchen: strict regulations on what it may serve and how it must be packed. It will only buy produce that comes in approved, certified packaging.

|---|---|
| Shopping list | Long-dated assets that match long-dated promises; extra yield over bonds; but in a form that does not eat up too much regulatory capital. |
| Pain points | Capital rules make some investments "expensive" to hold even if they are safe. A plain fund stake can be capital-heavy Inferred. Insurers need detailed data for their regulators. |
| What they buy | Direct Lending exposure through a rated note feeder: a vehicle that issues rated bonds backed by the fund, which about $600m of DLF V came through [S237]. The PSG co-heads describe it as "giving insurers a more capital-efficient route into the strategy without changing the underlying investment" [S222]. |
| What they like about Hayfin | The same loans, re-packaged for their rulebook. Hayfin claims its feeder was "one of the first priced by a European direct lending manager" [S222] (Hayfin's own claim). Ownership links (Samsung Life, AXA IM Prime) and a Seoul office [S223] show Hayfin courting insurers directly Inferred. |

Customer 3 · Sovereign wealth funds (12.1% of AUM) — the very large, very patient customer

Who they are. State-owned investment funds that invest a country's savings, often for generations. Australia's Future Fund was one of Hayfin's founding backers [S307]. Mubadala (Abu Dhabi) is a minority shareholder [S74]; whether it is also a fund investor is not public. DLF V drew 10% of its capital from the Middle East [S222].

> SHOP ANALOGY
> The national catering contractor: buys in bulk, wants its own custom mix, and visits the warehouse in person.

|---|---|
| Shopping list | Very large tickets, often through their own account rather than a shared fund; diversification across regions; access to specialist teams; sometimes co-investment. |
| Pain points | Hard to deploy billions without moving markets; need to diversify away from their home region; want control over terms. |
| What they buy | Often SMAs (separately managed accounts): a custom account just for them that follows a Hayfin strategy. Hayfin's SEC filings list several single-investor vehicles, such as one $568m vehicle with one owner [S304] (identity not public; SMA reading is inferred). |
| What they like about Hayfin | European diversification ("adding European exposure is a genuine diversification of underlying risk", Carlos Pla [S277]); custom packaging; a local presence: Hayfin opened a Dubai office in January 2024 "to enhance its coverage in the UAE and Middle Eastern markets" [S9]. |

Customers 4-7 · Banks, funds of funds, family offices and endowments, consultants (17.3% together) — the smaller segments

|---|---|
| Banks (6.9%) | Banks with investment arms. Example: Sumitomo Mitsui Trust Bank committed to Hayfin's Maritime Yield strategy in April 2025 [S114]. Like: specialist assets they cannot easily build themselves. |
| Funds of funds (4.3%) | Funds that pick other managers for smaller clients. Like: a manager they can defend to their own clients; standard reporting. |
| Family offices, endowments (4.0%) | Very wealthy families and university or charity endowments. Like: long-horizon income; often smaller tickets, close to the €10m minimum [S303]. |
| Consultants (2.1%) | Investment consultants that also run money for clients. Like: a manager that passes their research process. |

The regions, and why Australia is so big

Australia supplies 22.8% of Hayfin's AUM [S305], almost as much as all of continental Europe. That is unusual for a European lender. Three facts point to why [Inferred link between them]: Australia's Future Fund was a founding backer in 2009 [S307]; Australia has very large, fast-growing retirement funds that invest abroad [Inferred, general knowledge]; and Hayfin hired a Melbourne-based managing director, a former chief investment officer of the consultant JANA, to lead its Australian clients in 2025 [S272]. A Companies House entity named "Hayfin Hostplus LP" exists [S42]; Hostplus is an Australian pension fund name, but whether it is an SMA for that fund is not confirmed.

The newest branch, Seoul, opened on 1 October 2026 as "a dedicated distribution and investor relations office", that is, a shop front with no lending team [S223]. Hayfin manages close to €1bn for Korean investors and has done since 2016 [S239].

The gatekeepers: consultants, the "consumer magazine"

SHOP ANALOGY

Before a hospital chooses a supplier, its procurement team reads the trade magazine's ratings. A "Best Buy" from the magazine opens doors at hundreds of hospitals at once. Consultants are that magazine for pension funds.

Consultants such as Mercer, Cambridge Associates and Meketa advise many pension funds on which managers to hire. A vendor source says "for most institutional LPs, a consultant's recommendation is a prerequisite" [S202] (low-weight source). For Hayfin they matter more each year: "Investment consultant involvement in DLF V was also greater than in any prior Hayfin fundraise" [S222]. Hayfin has responded by hiring consultants into its own shop front: a head of consultant relations from BlackRock (Steve Bringardner), an ex-Mercer consultant (Rob Kneip), the ex-chief investment officer of JANA (Steven Carew) and an ex-Meketa principal (Tim Atkinson) [S1][S4][S272]. [Confirmed hires; strategy Inferred]

Who is not a customer, and why that is a choice

Many rivals now sell private credit to wealthy individuals through "evergreen" funds that let investors leave each quarter. Hayfin does not: its private credit uses "fully locked-up institutional drawdown funds, with no retail capital" [S227]. In 2026 that choice became a selling point, because several large US retail funds received withdrawal requests well above their 5% quarterly limit and had to cap payouts [S184][S243]. Hayfin said those strains "accelerated LP demand for conservative fund structures" [S221]. Note the nuance: Hayfin does offer "institutional evergreen vehicles" [S221], such as the Tactical Solutions Evergreen Fund [S322], but only to institutions.

SHOP ANALOGY

A wholesaler that refuses to open a retail counter. It gives up some sales, but it never has a queue of members of the public demanding refunds on the same day.

SECTION 3

Pain points, and the value created

What keeps a pension fund's investment team awake, and Hayfin's answer to each problem

SHOP ANALOGY

A good shop starts from the customer's problem, not its own stock. The hospital caterer's problems are: feed people reliably, stay within budget, pass inspections, and never be embarrassed by a bad batch. Hayfin's customers have the investment versions of those problems.

Figure 3.1 · Eight customer pain points and the value Hayfin creates for each. Pains marked Inferred are the author's reading of investor needs; Hayfin's answers are sourced.

The 2026 pains: what customers actually asked Hayfin

We do not have to guess this. The PSG co-heads wrote that during the DLF V fundraise "LP scrutiny of downside protection [was] even deeper than in previous cycles, particularly around use of PIK, technology exposure and loss rates" [S222]. And Hayfin's New York Investor Day (April 2026, over 90 investors and partners) focused on "portfolio transparency, views on AI disruption across our own portfolios, and the durability of European private credit" [S228][S31].

| The worry | What it means in plain English | Hayfin's stated answer |
|---|---|---|
| PIK | "Payment in kind": a borrower adds interest to its debt instead of paying cash. Sometimes planned, sometimes a sign of trouble. Fitch counted PIK switches and deferrals as 47% of US private credit defaults in August 2026 [S245]. | Hayfin published "A Tale of Three PIKs" separating good, bad and "fake good" PIK: "Done well, PIK is not something to be feared" [S229]. Most interest across its book is paid in cash (firm claim) [S95]. |
| Technology exposure | Lenders to software companies worry AI could undercut those businesses. Around 19% of direct loans went to software firms by end-2025 (BIS) [S242]. | Software under 6% of the Direct Lending book, under 5% in the latest fund (Hayfin's figure) [S227]. |
| Loss rates | How much lent money is actually lost. | Not published recently. The last public statement (2015) was no realised losses from borrower default [S307]. In 2026 Hayfin said its watchlist had fallen by almost a third since end-2023 (firm claim) [S95]. |

KNOW WHAT IS NOT PUBLIC

Hayfin's current loss rate and recent fund returns are not public. If an interviewer asks, say what is public (the 2015 statement, the watchlist claim, the software figure) and that the full track record sits in the fund documents investors receive. That honesty is itself an investor relations skill.

SECTION 4

The products on the shelves

Every product line explained simply, with its shop equivalent, then the packaging the same product comes in

SHOP ANALOGY

The importer has an everyday staples aisle (bread, rice), a premium deli counter (higher price, more skill to judge), a pre-packed aisle of tins with a printed label that can be resold quickly, and a few specialist counters (a fishmonger, a pharmacy) where only experts can buy well. Same at Hayfin.

The shop floor plan: product lines by risk, return and size

Figure 4.1 · The shop floor plan. AUM by strategy from [S305]. The 8%+ and 15%+ labels come from a 2016 Pennsylvania pension memo describing how the market saw Hayfin [S307]; they are not current fund targets, which are not public.

Each product line, simply

| Product line | Shop equivalent | What it is | Who buys it, and why |
|---|---|---|---|
| Direct Lending (the flagship) | The everyday staples aisle | Senior secured loans, often "unitranche" (one loan instead of several layers), to mid-sized private-equity-owned European companies. 40% of the book is "sole lender" deals [S95]. DLF V raised over €15bn in July 2026 [S71]. | Pensions and insurers wanting steady, cash-paid income with first claim on the borrower's assets. The bulk of AUM. |
| Special Opportunities | The premium deli counter | Flexible capital for complex or stressed situations, made directly or by buying loans from others at a discount, "to find attractive deployment at all points of the cycle" [S328]. Fund III raised over €2bn in 2021 [S89]. | Investors willing to take more complexity for higher returns. The first fund targeted 11-15% net a year (2012) [S306]. |

| Product line | Shop equivalent | What it is | Who buys it, and why |
|---|---|---|---|
| Tactical Solutions | The "between" shelf | Sits "between our Direct Lending and Special Opportunities strategies" [S328]: more structure than a plain loan, less risk than rescue capital. Has an evergreen version [S322]. | Investors wanting a middle step on the risk ladder. Vermont committed $50m in 2026 [S322]. |
| High Yield & Syndicated Loans, CLOs | The pre-packed aisle | Traded bonds and loans arranged by banks, plus CLOs (vehicles that buy pools of loans and sell rated slices). European CLOs: €5.8bn across 14 deals; the €1.4bn US CLO business is under review [S225]. | Investors wanting credit they can trade, and CLO bond buyers. Different customers from the private funds Inferred. |
| Private Equity Solutions | The rare-goods counter | Buys stakes in "continuation vehicles", where a PE firm keeps one company longer [S106]. Hayfin co-led a €155m one for Health in Code in 2026 [S70]. | Investors wanting equity-like upside with a credit manager's caution. |
| Healthcare | The pharmacy counter | Life sciences lending pitched on "value protection through intellectual property, diversification and low correlation" [S328]. Example: €550m Juvisé Pharmaceuticals refinancing, February 2026 [S70]. | Investors wanting returns that move differently from the economy. |
| Maritime | The fishmonger | Lending against and owning ships on long charters. 15 specialists, over $4bn deployed, over 100 vessels [S227]; in-house ship manager Greenheart [S102]. | Banks and insurers wanting real-asset income; Sumitomo Mitsui Trust Bank committed in 2025 [S114]. |
| Real Estate | The property counter | Real estate lending and buying, inside private credit; e.g. 70 St Mary Axe, London, with Capreon (Dec 2025) [S115]. | Investors wanting secured property-backed income. |

The packaging: same product, different wrappers

SHOP ANALOGY

The same coffee beans can be sold as a retail bag, a bulk sack for a café, a monthly subscription, or a sealed and certified box for an airline. The beans do not change. The packaging changes so each customer can buy. In finance the packaging is called a wrapper.

Figure 4.2 · The packaging. The five access routes for DLF V are listed by the PSG co-heads [S222], who add that assets in the levered fund more than doubled versus DLF IV. Their line: managers should "remain disciplined in how they invest, while becoming increasingly flexible in how investors access those investments" [S94].

WHY THIS MATTERS FOR YOUR TEAM

Designing and explaining the packaging is Partner Solutions work. Hayfin's own product strategy team "owns" it: Maura English heads Product Strategy, and Tim Atkinson leads product strategy for the opportunistic strategies from London [S284][S287]. When you say "the strategy stays the same, the wrappers change", you are describing your future job.

SECTION 5

Product differentiation

The street is full of credit shops. Eight things that make Hayfin's different, each with evidence, and where rivals beat it

SHOP ANALOGY

Every importer sells rice. Customers pick one because of how it sources, checks, packs and stands behind the rice. "Our rice is good" is not differentiation. "We have a buyer on every farm, and if a batch fails we replace it ourselves" is.

The street: who else is selling

The high street of European private credit: shop size by latest European direct lending fund (€ bn)

Figure 5.1 · The street. Scale 10 px per €1bn. Ares ACE VI (Jan 2025) [S135]; ICG SDP 5 ($17bn, Sep 2024) [S132]; Hayfin DLF V (Jul 2026) [S71]; CVC EUDL IV (Oct 2025) [S147]; Arcmont DLF IV (Jan 2024) [S129]; Pemberton two funds combined (May 2025) [S138]; Tikehau 6th vintage (2026) [S141]. Not like-for-like: some include mandates, leverage or related vehicles.

So Hayfin is one of the three biggest "shops" on the street for this product, next to two much larger, stock-market-listed groups (Ares and ICG). Size alone does not differentiate it. The eight points below do.

Eight differentiators, in depth

1 · One sourcing team, several doors — the core idea

What it is. The same local teams can offer a company a cheap senior loan (Direct Lending), something in between (Tactical Solutions) or expensive rescue capital (Special Opportunities). A 2016 Pennsylvania pension memo: Direct Lending "has served to benefit the Firm's Special Opportunities strategy... the market now not only viewing Hayfin as a 15%+ lender but an 8%+ lender. Once engaged, Hayfin has a greater ability to obtain favorable pricing" [S307]. [Confirmed, primary investor document]

> SHOP ANALOGY
> A farm that sells you everyday wheat also tells you first when it has a rare harvest. Because you buy both, you hear about every crop, and you get first pick.

Why a customer cares. More deals seen means more can be rejected; in 2012 Hayfin saw over 1,400 opportunities and made 60 investments [S306]. And the firm can keep lending when the economy turns, because stressed companies become Special Opportunities customers rather than "no thanks" [S328].

Versus rivals. Arcmont, Pemberton and Permira Credit are more focused on direct lending; Ares and ICG are broader but are huge multi-asset groups [S130][S138][S133]. Hayfin is unusual in being credit-only but across the whole risk range [Inferred from S127].

2 · Its own repair service: the workout team — the warranty

What it is. When a borrower struggles, Hayfin's in-house legal and restructuring people step in. "Our edge lying in our origination networks and proven expertise in managing complex restructurings, workouts and liquidations" [S331]; internal legal staff experienced "in each of the relevant creditor regimes in Europe" [S307].

> SHOP ANALOGY
> Two shops sell the same washing machine. One sends its own engineer within a day if it breaks; the other gives you a phone number. Customers pay for the engineer.

Why a customer cares. In credit, the upside is capped (you get your interest), so avoiding losses is everything. Flynn: workout capability is "the number one theme in the LP community" [S281]; at a Hayfin Investor Day it was the top-voted factor in a poll [S105]. Europe has many different insolvency regimes, so local legal skill is hard to copy Inferred.

3 · The local "home team" in a fragmented market — buyers on every farm

What it is. 13 offices with local origination [S71]. Tognolini: "We consider ourselves the European home team, with 17 years of track record and a platform built to operate across fragmented jurisdictions, languages and legal regimes" [S227]. 40% of the Direct Lending book is sole-lender deals [S95], and about half of recent lending went to existing borrowers, which Tognolini calls "a competitive advantage" [S117].

> SHOP ANALOGY
> A buyer who lives in the village knows which farmer is reliable before the harvest is weighed. A buyer who flies in once a year does not.

Why a customer cares. Sole-lender deals mean Hayfin controls the terms and the restructuring if things go wrong Inferred. Repeat borrowers mean Hayfin already knows the business. Hayfin also argues Europe carries "lower leverage, tighter documentation and smaller lender groups" than the US [S95] (firm claim).

4 · Specialist counters few rivals have — the fishmonger and the pharmacy

What it is. Dedicated healthcare (life sciences), maritime and real estate teams [S327]. Maritime has 15 specialists, over $4bn deployed and over 100 vessels, with its own ship manager, Greenheart [S227][S102].

Why a customer cares. These are small (Healthcare €0.6bn, Maritime €0.5bn in March 2025 [S305]) but give investors returns that move differently from ordinary company loans, and they make the generalist teams smarter about those sectors Inferred. No peer of similar size in the comparison set showed maritime lending [Inferred from S127 and peer sites].

5 · No run on the shop: locked-up institutional money only — the 2026 differentiator

What it is. "Hayfin's private credit strategies rely exclusively on fully locked-up institutional drawdown funds, with no retail capital" [S227].

> SHOP ANALOGY
> A shop with an unlimited same-day refund policy can be forced to dump stock cheaply when everyone returns things at once. A shop with no refunds never has to.

Why a customer cares. In 2026 several large US retail credit funds got withdrawal requests far above 5% a quarter and had to cap payouts [S184]. A fund that never faces withdrawals never has to sell loans at a bad price Inferred. Hayfin linked this directly to DLF V's success [S221]. Honest note: ICG says almost exactly the same ("no open-ended or so-called semi-liquid structures in direct lending") [S134], so this is a shared stance, not unique.

6 · Packaging built for each customer — the certified box

What it is. Five wrappers for DLF V, including a rated note feeder of about $600m for insurers [S222][S237] (Section 4).

Why a customer cares. Without the right wrapper, some customers simply cannot buy, whatever the quality. The rated feeder turns a capital-heavy stake into something an insurer's rulebook can accept [S222]. Ares also serves insurers through its insurance platform [S136], so the idea is not unique; Hayfin's point is doing it inside a European mid-sized manager's flagship close Inferred.

7 · Written fairness rules between its own funds — the honest scales

What it is. Because Hayfin runs several funds, two could end up lending to the same company in different layers. Its rules: one must be a "non-blocking minority stake", under a third of the tranche; trades between Hayfin funds need prior sign-off from the Chief Compliance Officer and Chief Operating Officer; exceptions go to an Investments Conflicts Committee of the CEO, CRO, COO, CCO and General Counsel [S305]. Staff are "rewarded to collaborate, rather than outperform peers" [S305].

> SHOP ANALOGY
> A shop that serves two rival restaurants publishes exactly how it splits the best fish between them, so neither suspects favouritism.

Why a customer cares. An investor in one Hayfin fund needs to know another Hayfin fund will not benefit at its expense. These rules are written, specific and auditable, and they answer the first question in a multi-fund investor's DDQ Inferred.

8 · Owned by the people running it — the owner behind the counter

What it is. After a 2025 management buyout funded by Arctos, the Hayfin team holds the majority of the common equity; Mubadala, AXA IM Prime and Samsung Life hold minority stakes [S73][S74][S75][S301].

> SHOP ANALOGY
> An owner-run shop versus a branch of a chain: the owner lives with every decision and is not following head-office targets.

Why a customer cares. Alignment: the decision-makers own the business. Contrast: Arcmont is majority-owned by Nuveen/TIAA, HPS by BlackRock, and Ares, ICG and Tikehau are listed [S131][S146][S133]. Some customers prefer the resources of a big parent, so this cuts both ways Inferred.

Where the shop next door wins (so you never overclaim)

| Rival advantage | Evidence |
|---|---|
| Bigger shop, bigger fund | Ares ACE VI €17.1bn [S135]; Ares manages $671bn overall [S136]; ICG $126bn [S133]. |
| Fundraising league tables | Ares is first and ICG sixth in the PEI Private Credit 200; Hayfin is not in the top 10 [S144]. |
| Deal league tables | Ares (31 deals), Arcmont (23), Apollo (20) led European direct lending in H1 2026 [S186]. |
| A retail counter | Ares raised $1.0bn into its European evergreen fund in one quarter [S136]; Tikehau sells widely to private banks [S141]. Hayfin does not. |
| Awards | Pemberton won PDI's Lender of the Year Europe for 2025 [S139] (Hayfin won Mergermarket's Private Credit Lender of the Year in 2026 [S224]). |

> DON'T SAY THIS
> "Hayfin is the biggest" or "Hayfin has the best returns". Say: "one of the three largest European direct lending funds on record, with a sourcing and workout model built for a fragmented market."

SECTION 6

The client side: the shop front

Where each differentiator is shown to customers, how Partner Solutions does it, and what is distinctive about how Hayfin does it

SHOP ANALOGY

A great product nobody understands does not sell. The shop front decides what goes in the window, what the labels say, how staff answer questions, what the receipt shows, and how complaints are handled. At Hayfin, the shop front is the Partner Solutions Group (PSG).

The shop front's six tools, in the order a customer meets them

Real Hayfin examples of each tool

1. "A Tale of Three PIKs" (Jul 2026) [S229]; "The Complexity Premium" (Sep 2026) [S262]; the €15bn fundraise debrief (Sep 2026) [S222]
2. Case studies with US marketing-rule disclaimers, gross and net defined (e.g. PE Solutions update) [S330]
3. DDQ and RFP drafting by the London Product Strategy team [S20]; ESG answers on PRI and SFDR (six Article 8 funds) [S25]
4. Five wrappers for DLF V, including the ~$600m rated note feeder [S222][S237]
5. Line-by-line track record, every loan's EBITDA, value and leverage, quarterly; audited accounts within 90 days [S305]
6. Advisory Boards twice a year [S305]; New York Investor Day, 90+ attendees [S31]; Seoul and Dubai investor offices [S223][S275]

Which differentiator is shown where

|---|---|---|
| 1 · One sourcing team, several doors | Pitch book explains the strategy ladder; product strategists split by strategy (DL and PES; opportunistic credit) [S1] | Cross-selling: an investor in DLF can be shown Special Opps or Tactical from the same relationship. Coverage is organised by region, product strategy by strategy, so both views exist [S1] Inferred |
| 2 · Workout team | Case studies of restructured loans; DDQ answers on recovery; investor days | Hayfin puts the workout story at the front, because LPs rank it first [S281][S105] |
| 3 · Local home team | Deal case studies (Condis in Spain, Serwent in the Nordics) [S231][S232]; regional coverage officers who speak the market's language | Coverage is local too: Tokyo, Seoul, Munich, Stockholm, Melbourne, Dallas, Dubai [S1] |
| 4 · Specialist counters | Thought leadership ("The Capital Gap in Healthcare", Jul 2026) [S235]; a London MD for opportunistic and specialist products [S287] | Specialist products have their own product strategist, not just a line in the deck [S287] |

|---|---|---|
| 5 · No run on the shop | Fund terms explained in DDQs; the DLF V press release made it the headline [S221] | Turned a market crisis into a reason to buy, in real time [S221][S227] |
| 6 · Packaging | Wrapper design and structuring; insurer-specific materials | Rated feeder "without changing the underlying investment" [S222] |
| 7 · Fairness rules | DDQ conflict sections; Advisory Board reviews of conflicts and expenses twice a year [S305] | Rules published in the Stewardship report, not only shown privately [S305] |
| 8 · Owner-run | Ownership and key-person sections of DDQs; updates when leaders change (e.g. new Head of Investments, May 2026) [S226] | Several shareholders are also big allocators, linking ownership to distribution Inferred |

Five things Hayfin's shop front does differently

1. It hired the "magazine reviewers". Senior PSG hires came from consultants and allocators: BlackRock consultant relations, Mercer, JANA (ex-CIO), Meketa, and the Texas Permanent School Fund [S1][S4][S272] [S289]. People who used to judge managers now explain Hayfin to the judges. [Confirmed hires; strategy Inferred]
2. It sits in the kitchen, not just at the counter. PSG is a member of the ESG Deal Committee that every private credit deal passes before final approval [S305], and investor relations co-produces quarterly reports with the investment teams [S305]. So the shop front sees deals early and can explain them accurately. Confirmed
3. It writes in public about what customers worry about. When LPs worried about PIK, Hayfin published a framework for it [S229]; when they worried about the market, the PSG co-heads published what the €15bn raise taught them [S222]. Confirmed
4. It opens branches only for customers. Seoul (2026) and Dubai (2024) are investor offices [S223][S275]. Hayfin is "European assets, global capital": investing focused on Europe, customers worldwide [Inferred from S225 and the office list].
5. It trains staff on honest labelling. Hayfin trained its "Investor Relations and Partner Solutions teams" on the FCA's anti-greenwashing rule in 2024 [S25]. Labels must match the product. Confirmed

SECTION 7

Why the customer sees the value

The value equation, and three customers walking through the shop

SHOP ANALOGY

A caterer does not buy the cheapest rice. It buys the rice with the best mix of price, reliability, quality checks, packaging that fits its kitchen, and a supplier it trusts to fix problems. "Value" is the whole bundle, not the price tag.

The customer's value equation (author's framework)

VALUE = income above bonds × confidence it will be paid

× fit with my rules and portfolio × ease of owning it ÷ fees and lock-up

| Income | Confidence | Fit | Ease | Cost |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| floating-rate, mostly cash-paid senior loans | wide funnel, senior position, workout team, no forced sales | wrapper for each rulebook; European diversification | clear reporting, fast answers, local coverage | fees (~1% norm), 7-10 year lock-up, currency risk |
| [S71][S151] | [S306][S307][S227] | [S222][S277] | [S305][S1] | [S104][S305][S307] |

Figure 7.1 · The value equation. The equation is the author's simplification Inferred, not a formula investors use. Each term is sourced. Fee level is an industry norm, not Hayfin's terms.

Investors themselves rank what matters. In the 2026 SS&C Intralinks survey of 280+ LPs, the top reasons for choosing a manager were investment strategy (51%), sector-specific knowledge (30%), risk appetite (27%), co-investment opportunities (22%), reputation and track record (21% each) and fees (14%) [S189]. Fees came last. That supports the point: customers buy the bundle.

Three customers walk into the shop

These are illustrative composites Inferred, built from the real customer types and Hayfin facts above. They are not real named investors.

Walk-through A · A US state pension fund — illustrative

Need: income above US bonds, and diversification away from US companies. Pain: its consultant must approve any new manager; the board worries about currency and about 2026's private credit headlines. Journey: its consultant shortlists Hayfin (consultant involvement in DLF V was the highest ever [S222]) → the pension sends a DDQ; PSG answers on PIK, software exposure (under 6% [S227]) and loss history → it commits to DLF V and, like Nashville in 2013, hedges the euro [S309] → it receives quarterly line-by-line reports [S305]. Value it sees: European loans it could not source itself, from a manager its consultant has vetted, with a currency answer ready. Watch-out: unhedged, euro moves can erase returns (PSERS: 8.0% in euros, -2.6% in dollars by 2015 [S307]).

Walk-through B · A Korean life insurer — illustrative

Need: long-dated assets that match long-dated policies, with good capital treatment. Pain: a plain fund stake may be expensive in regulatory capital. Journey: meets Hayfin's new Seoul office (opened 1 Oct 2026, "dedicated distribution and investor relations" [S223]) → is shown the rated note feeder route into Direct Lending [S222] → Finance supplies the data for its regulatory reporting [S333]. Value it sees: the same senior loans in packaging its rulebook accepts, plus a local relationship. Hayfin already manages close to €1bn for Korean investors [S239].

Walk-through C · A Gulf sovereign wealth fund — illustrative

Need: deploy hundreds of millions into Europe on its own terms. Pain: commingled funds do not fit its size or rules. Journey: covered from London and Dubai (Camilla Coriani heads Middle East and Southern Europe coverage [S288]) → negotiates an SMA following Direct Lending, or commits alongside the main fund (the Middle East supplied 10% of DLF V [S222]) → joins the Advisory Board [S305]. Value it sees: custom terms, direct access to the team, and European diversification.

SECTION 8

Retention: why customers come back

The re-up loop, the switching costs, the evidence, and what could break it

SHOP ANALOGY

A caterer stays with an importer for decades if every delivery arrives as described, every invoice is clear, problems get fixed, and switching would mean months of new supplier checks. Loyalty is earned on every delivery, not at the sale.

Figure 8.1 · The re-up loop. The loop is the author's framing Inferred. DLF VI is referenced in a Hayfin Fund Controller job posting [S333]; reporting and Advisory Boards from [S305].

Why customers stay: six reasons

| Reason | Shop equivalent | Evidence and explanation |
|---|---|---|
| 1. They must keep buying anyway | The caterer needs supplies every year | Pensions and insurers set a target share for private credit and must recommit as old funds repay [Inferred, standard allocation practice; see S202]. The question is not "whether" but "with whom". An existing, trusted manager starts ahead. |
| 2. Switching is expensive | Re-vetting a new supplier takes months | A DDQ can take 40-60 hours (vendor estimate) [S190]; the whole selection process can take 6-18 months (vendor, low weight) [S202]. Re-upping with a known manager skips much of that. |
| 3. The market rewards incumbents | Customers stick to the shops they know | 93% of 2025 private debt capital went to managers raising their fourth fund or later [S152]. PitchBook reads 2026's big closes as "LPs re-upping with proven managers rather than underwriting new relationships" [S151]. |
| 4. Every receipt builds trust | Clear invoices, no surprises | Line-by-line quarterly reports, CEO letters, audited accounts in 90 days [S305]. Accuracy here is what the intern role protects. |
| 5. One relationship, many shelves | Buying more lines from one trusted supplier | An investor in Direct Lending can add Special Opps, Tactical or a specialist strategy without a new relationship [S327]. Vermont's 2026 commitment was to Tactical Solutions Evergreen [S322]; PSERS invested in two Special Opportunities funds [S306][S307]. |

| Reason | Shop equivalent | Evidence and explanation |
|---|---|---|
| 6. Customers become partners, even owners | The caterer that buys a stake in the importer | BCI sold its majority stake but stayed "a significant and strategic limited partner in certain key Hayfin fund strategies" [S315]. Samsung Life became a shareholder and said it "will support Hayfin's investment strategies" [S75]. |

The evidence that it works

Each edition of the flagship has been bigger than the last (Direct Lending fund size, € bn, "over")

Scale 10 px per €1bn. Sources: S79, S90, S90, S88, S71. Sizes include SMAs or related vehicles where Hayfin says so.

Figure 8.2 · Customers kept coming back, and brought more. Hayfin thanked "both new and long-standing investors" at the DLF V close [S29]. The split between re-ups and new investors is not public [Gap].

What could break loyalty (be ready to discuss)

- Bad deliveries. Losses or weak returns. Hayfin publishes no current loss rate; one investor (PSERS) booked a small negative carried-interest accrual on its Hayfin funds in 2024 [S308], suggesting weaker marks on older funds Inferred.
- Too big to stay picky. A €15bn fund must be deployed while European deal volumes were down 29% in 2026 (PitchBook via ACI) [S240]. Hayfin's own answer: "Scale should be an outcome of repeatability, rather than an objective in itself" [S222].
- People leaving. Investors watch key people closely. Some former senior names no longer appear on Hayfin's website [S296].
- Cheaper or bigger shops. Ares, ICG and US managers moving into Europe; bank and fund partnerships such as Citi with HPS [S186][S255].
- A bad receipt. An error in reporting damages trust faster than a weak quarter Inferred. This is why proofreading is a named intern duty.

SECTION 9

The shop on one page

The whole picture, plus lines you can use in an interview

Lines you can use in an interview

THE 20-SECOND VERSION

"I think of Hayfin as a specialist shop for European credit. Its customers are institutions, half of them pension funds. They come for steady, senior, cash-paid income, and they stay because of three things: one local sourcing team that sees deals as both an 8% and a 15% lender, an in-house workout team that fixes problems, and packaging that fits each customer, like the rated feeder for insurers. Partner Solutions is the shop front that makes all of that visible, quarter after quarter."

IF ASKED "WHAT DOES THE CLIENT SIDE ACTUALLY DO?"

"It decides what goes in the window, writes the labels, answers every question, designs the packaging, sends the receipts and runs the customer club. The quality of the receipts is what drives the next sale, because every quarterly report is effectively a pitch for the next fund."

IF ASKED "WHY WOULD AN INVESTOR PICK HAYFIN OVER ARES?"

"Ares is bigger and has a retail counter. Hayfin's case is different: an owner-run, Europe-focused shop with one sourcing team across the whole risk range, a workout team behind every loan, and only locked-up institutional money, which mattered a lot in 2026."

DON'T SAY THIS

"Hayfin is the biggest", "Hayfin has the best returns" or "Hayfin sells to retail investors". None is supported. Avoid quoting current fund return targets or loss rates; they are not public.

Mini glossary

| | |
|---|---|
| AUM | Assets under management: how much money the manager looks after. |
| Commitment / capital call | The amount an investor promises / the manager asking for part of it when a loan is made. |
| Commingled fund | A shared fund with many investors. |
| Consultant | A firm that advises pension funds on which managers to hire. |
| Covenant | A promise by the borrower, such as keeping debt below a limit. |
| DDQ / RFP | Due diligence questionnaire / request for proposal: the long question lists investors send managers. |
| Evergreen | A fund with no end date that allows limited exits. |
| Leverage | Borrowing. A levered fund borrows to boost returns. |
| LP / GP | Limited partner (investor) / general partner (manager). |
| PIK | Payment in kind: interest added to the loan instead of paid in cash. |
| Rated note feeder | A vehicle that issues rated bonds backed by a fund so insurers can hold the exposure more capital-efficiently. |
| Re-up | An existing investor committing to the next fund. |
| Senior secured | Debt with first claim on the company's assets. |
| SMA | Separately managed account: a custom account for one investor. |
| Solvency II | EU insurance capital rules. |
| Unitranche | One loan replacing several layers of debt, at one price. |
| Workout | Fixing or recovering a loan that has gone wrong. |
