Source list — where every claim comes from

Prepared for Janak Chohan — final-year BSc Economics, University of East Anglia, graduating June 2027. Research date: 1 October 2026, the day the roles opened. Every job detail below was taken from the live HSBC application portal on that date.

Read this first — the three facts that decide everything

OFFICIAL Fact 1: You get ONE application per recruitment cycle. HSBC's own FAQ, asked "can I apply to more than one programme?", answers: "Sadly not, but we have lots of support to help you decide which programme to apply to." ^[3] One choice. That is why this document exists — to make sure the one application goes to the right place.

OFFICIAL Fact 2: The deadlines are brutal and the review is rolling. The roles opened 1 October 2026. Most London roles close 15 October. The Commercial Bank and Retail graduate schemes close 18 October. The Private Bank graduate scheme closes 29 October. "Rolling review" means HSBC reads applications as they arrive and can fill the seats — and close the posting — before the stated deadline. ^{[2][6]} Applying in week one is materially better than applying in week three.

OFFICIAL Fact 3: As a June 2027 graduate, most of what opened today is closed to you — and that's fine. Every 2027 summer internship states you must be "in the penultimate year of undergraduate study and be expecting to graduate in 2028." ^[7] You are in your final year, so the entire summer internship shelf — Investment Banking, Markets, Transaction Banking, the Corporate and Institutional Banking relationship internship — is not available to you. What is available to you is the graduate-programme shelf, which requires studies "completed by July 2027" — your graduation month, exactly. ^[6]

The bottom line, up front: your strongest eligible application this cycle is Relationship Management – Private Bank – Graduate (London), closing 29 October 2026. The rest of this document explains what every open role actually is, why that one fits you, and what your backup routes are.

Your eligibility map — every family, one verdict each

A quick decoder before the table. HSBC splits its early-careers roles into families:

- A graduate programme is a permanent job with a structured first 18–24 months. You start after graduating.

- A summer internship is a 10-week paid tryout in the summer before your final year. It is HSBC's main hiring funnel: perform well and you convert to a graduate offer.
- An off-cycle internship is the same tryout but starting in March, aimed at people who have already finished studying.
- A work placement is a 12–13 month job taken as a sandwich year in the middle of a degree.
- An insight programme is a one-to-five-day taster event (the thing you already attended for Corporate and Institutional Banking).

Family	Example roles	Your verdict (grad June 2027)
Graduate programmes	Private Bank RM (London), Commercial Bank RM (5 regions), Retail Rotational (Birmingham/Leeds)	ELIGIBLE — this is your lane OFFICIAL
Summer internships (June 2027 start)	IB, Markets, Transaction Banking, CIB RM, Private Bank, Investment Specialist	NOT eligible — penultimate year only, graduating 2028 OFFICIAL
Off-cycle internships (March 2027 start)	IB, Infrastructure Finance, Markets, Trade Solutions, Issuer Services	Grey area — a near miss. Requires studies "completed by the end of March 2027"; you finish in June. Worth one email to confirm (see section below) OFFICIAL
Work placements (12–13 months)	Global Investment Research, Commercial Bank RM	NOT eligible — for sandwich-year students graduating 2029 OFFICIAL
Degree apprenticeships	Commercial Bank, Retail	NOT relevant — school-leaver entry OFFICIAL
Spring/insight weeks (2027 editions)	Expected to open ~November 2026	NOT relevant — first and second years only CORROBORATED — aggregator timeline, unconfirmed

OFFICIAL HSBC's own careers site confirms this mapping in plain words: penultimate-year students are pointed at internships and placements; "final-year students and recent graduates" are pointed at insight programmes, off-cycle internships and graduate programmes. ^[5] You are being routed exactly where you should be.

One more structural fact that surprises most applicants:

OFFICIAL There is NO London graduate scheme this cycle for Investment Banking, Markets, Global Research, or Transaction Banking. Those desks fill their London graduate seats almost entirely by converting their summer interns. HSBC's FAQ says it outright: "in several locations our graduate programme places are filled via our internships. In locations where internships are available, they are the best route to securing a graduate opportunity." ^[3] So the absence of a "Markets Graduate — London" posting is not you missing something; the door genuinely is not there. The graduate doors that ARE open — Private Bank, Commercial Bank, Retail — are the real, complete list. ^{[2][6]}

The flagship fit: Relationship Management – Private Bank – Graduate (London)

OFFICIAL Requisition 1373565757. London (8 Canada Square / E14 5HQ area). Closes 29 October 2026. Starts 26 July 2027. Eligibility: studies completed by July 2027, minimum 2:1 degree, any subject. Visa sponsorship is considered for this role. ^[8]

What the job actually is, in plain English

HSBC's Private Bank looks after wealthy individuals and families — typically people with millions in investable assets, often founders and business owners whose companies may also bank with HSBC's corporate side. A Relationship Manager (RM) is the one person at the bank that client deals with: the RM knows the client's situation, brings in specialists when needed, and is responsible for the whole relationship rather than any single product.

OFFICIAL The programme is 18 months, built as three six-month rotations across the Private Bank, working alongside the three core roles in the ecosystem ^[8]:

- Relationship Managers — own the client relationship end to end.
- Investment Counsellors — the investment experts who sit with the RM and advise the client on portfolios, markets and asset allocation.
- Credit Advisers — the lending specialists, because wealthy clients borrow too (against portfolios, property, even art), and lending is one of the stickiest parts of a private-banking relationship.

OFFICIAL The day-to-day named in the job description: portfolio reviews, working across asset classes, and "using Excel to create or interpret client and portfolio reports." ^[8] In other words: the analytical engine room behind client conversations — exactly the position you want, two years before you hold the relationships yourself.

OFFICIAL HSBC funds the Investment Advice Diploma (the regulatory qualification the UK requires before you can advise on investments) and the posting signals possible support for the CFA (Chartered Financial Analyst — the gold-standard investment qualification). ^[8] A regulated qualification funded in your first 18 months is a genuinely valuable, portable asset.

Why this maps onto your CV better than anything else on the shelf

INFERRED This is my judgement call, but it is a short hop, not a leap:

- Your Pictet Asset Management summer was client servicing and onboarding for institutional investors — due-diligence questionnaires, chasing custodian banks across Asia and the Middle East to open market access, performance reporting. That is the service-and-onboarding spine of relationship management, just with institutions instead of individuals.
- Your Oakwood equity-research presidency (the URBN long thesis, the dividend-model work) is precisely the skill set the Investment Counsellor rotation uses daily — forming and defending an investment view a client can act on.
- Your Box placement year is evidence you can run client operations for a full year, not a summer.
- Your stated preference — client-facing, relationship-led, not pure markets adrenaline — matches an 18-month programme whose entire content is the anatomy of a client relationship.

The interview story writes itself: "At Pictet I sat on the asset-management side serving institutional clients; I want to spend my career on the relationship side, and private banking is where relationship depth and investment content meet."

OFFICIAL One honest caveat: this is HSBC's Private Bank (individuals), not Corporate and Institutional Banking (companies) — the division whose insight day you attended. The two are deeply linked (HSBC explicitly targets entrepreneurs whose businesses bank with CIB), and your CIB knowledge is an asset, not a mismatch — many of a private bank's best clients arrive through the corporate bank's door. But be ready to answer "why Private Bank rather than CIB?" The clean answer: CIB's London graduate entry is internship-conversion only, and the relationship craft is the same craft; the Private Bank is where a 2027 graduate can start practising it. ^{[3][8]}

The strong alternative: Relationship Management – Commercial Bank – Graduate (regional)

OFFICIAL Five regional cohorts, all closing 18 October 2026, all starting 5 July 2027, all 24 months, minimum 2:1, studies complete by July 2027. No visa sponsorship (right to work required — fine for you). No London cohort. The regions and requisition numbers: South Home Counties — Reading/Guildford/Uxbridge (1373598657); North — Manchester/Liverpool/Leeds/Sheffield

(1373601257); Midlands — Birmingham/Leicester/Castle Donington (1373601957); South West and Wales — Bristol/Swansea/Cardiff (1373602557); Glasgow (1373600757). ^[9]

What the job actually is

HSBC's Commercial Bank serves businesses — from fast-growing small and medium-sized companies up to large corporates below the institutional tier. The RM job here is the purest version of relationship banking: you are the company's banker, and you quarterback everything they need — lending, trade finance, payments, foreign exchange — by pulling in specialists.

OFFICIAL The programme structure is unusually well-designed: two six-month product placements, then one twelve-month coverage placement. ^[9] Decoded:

- Product placements — six months each inside two product engines (think lending/credit, payments, or trade). The job description names the work: "analyse client and market data to identify trends, support product design and pricing, contribute to financial analysis and credit assessments." You learn what the bank actually sells before you sell it.
- Coverage placement — twelve months sitting with relationship teams: "help understand client objectives, identify opportunities, coordinate specialist expertise and balance client needs with commercial returns and risk." That sentence is the relationship manager job in miniature.
- OFFICIAL It ends in "a permanent client-facing role," and the posting says plainly: "You don't need prior banking experience... we'll help you build that through structured training and rotations." ^[9]

INFERRED Honest comparison against the Private Bank role: the Commercial Bank programme is arguably the better pure RM apprenticeship (product-then-coverage is a textbook build), and businesses-as-clients means you use more of the corporate credit knowledge from your insight-day prep. The costs: it is not in London, it does not touch investments (no Investment Advice Diploma or CFA route), and the client sophistication is lower than private-wealth or institutional work. Given your Pictet/investments thread, the Private Bank edges it — but if you would genuinely rather bank businesses than people, or you want the North/Midlands lifestyle economics, this is a completely respectable first choice, not a consolation prize.

The fallback: Retail Banking Rotational Graduate

OFFICIAL Birmingham (1373613957) and Leeds (1373614957). 24 months, starts 5 July 2027, closes 18 October 2026, no sponsorship. Rotations across "customer, digital, commercial and delivery teams" — the posted content includes complaints, disputes, fraud handling and digital-adoption analytics. ^[10]

INFERRED This is retail operations and proposition work, not front-office finance. It is a real graduate job at a global bank, but it does not use your investment or institutional-client experience, and moving from retail operations into private banking or CIB later is possible but slow. Only pick this if you decide the other two are wrong for you — and given your profile, I would not.

The grey area worth one email: off-cycle internships (March 2027)

OFFICIAL Five London off-cycle internships opened today, all closing 15 October 2026, all 10 weeks starting 1 March 2027, all 2:1 minimum with visa sponsorship considered: Investment Banking – CIB (1373577757), Investment Banking – Infrastructure Finance (1373577357), Markets – Sales and Trading (1373576757), Transaction Banking – Global Trade Solutions (1373576357), Transaction Banking – Issuer Services (1373573657). ^[11]

OFFICIAL The eligibility line: for people who "have completed studies, or will have completed them, by the end of March 2027." ^[11] You finish in June 2027 — a three-month near miss. Read strictly, you cannot be working full-time in London in March while sitting finals in Norwich, and that is almost certainly why the line exists.

INFERRED But do not self-reject on an ambiguous line — spend one email. Eligibility edge cases are exactly what the emerging-talent inbox exists for, and the answer costs you nothing. Suggested wording:

Subject: Off-cycle internship eligibility — final-year student graduating June 2027

Hello — I attended the CIB Graduate Insight Programme in September and am now choosing where to direct my one application this cycle. I graduate in June 2027, so I narrowly miss the "studies completed by end of March 2027" line for the off-cycle internships. Could you confirm whether a June 2027 graduate is eligible for this off-cycle round, or whether the next off-cycle round (autumn 2027 applications) is the right route for me? This determines whether I apply now to a graduate programme instead. Thank you.

OFFICIAL Why the off-cycle matters even if the answer is "no, not this round": the following round — applications in autumn 2027 for a March 2028 start — is the recent-graduate side door into London Markets and Investment Banking, the desks with no graduate scheme this cycle. Off-cycle postings state the internship "includes structured assessments aligned to securing a graduate role" — it is a conversion funnel, not a dead end. ^{[3][11]} Keep it in your back pocket as Plan B if you want those desks later.

What you cannot apply to — and why that should not sting

OFFICIAL For completeness, the full list of today's openings that are closed to you, so you never wonder if you missed a door [\[7\]](#)[\[12\]](#):

Role	Req	Why not you
Investment Banking – Internship (London)	1373578457	Penultimate year, graduating 2028
IB – Infrastructure Finance Internship	1373579357	Penultimate year
Markets – Sales and Trading Internship	1373586957	Penultimate year
Transaction Banking – Global Payments Solutions Internship	1373585357	Penultimate year
Transaction Banking – Securities Services Internship	1373585557	Penultimate year
Relationship Management – CIB – Internship	1373585257	Penultimate year
Relationship Management – Private Bank – Internship	1373563257	Penultimate year
Investment Specialist – Investments / Alternatives Internships	1373569257 / 1373566657	Penultimate year
Global Investment Research – Work Placement (13 months)	1373586657	Sandwich year, graduating 2029
Commercial Bank RM internships, placements, apprenticeships (regional)	various	Penultimate / sandwich / school-leaver
Data Analyst – Quantitative Finance Internship (closes 4 Dec)	1373585957	Master's/PhD quantitative students
Cyber / Engineering Internships (Sheffield)	1373562857 / 1371596557	Penultimate year, technology track

OFFICIAL The sting worth naming: Global Research — despite your equity-research presidency — has no door for you this cycle at all. Its only UK entry is the 13-month placement for students graduating 2029. ^[12] Deploy the Oakwood story as evidence inside your Private Bank application (it is Investment Counsellor DNA) rather than mourning a scheme that does not exist.

What the big tracks actually involve (so your "why this one" answer is informed)

You can only apply to one thing, but interviewers respect candidates who chose with their eyes open. Thirty seconds on each of the desks you are choosing not to pursue:

OFFICIAL Markets – Sales and Trading rotates interns across foreign exchange, interest rates, commodities, equities and securities financing, building tools in "Excel, VBA or Python" on Bloomberg and Reuters, after "a week of technical and behavioural training." ^[13] ANECDOTAL An August 2025 intern review describes real responsibility, feedback after every desk rotation, and seniors generous with time. ^[14] It suits a quantitative, fast-feedback temperament; sales desks are client-facing, but the relationship is measured in trades, not years.

OFFICIAL Investment Banking (London) is now explicitly "Strategic Advisory, Corporate Finance or Financing Solutions" — pitchbooks, financial modelling, credit analysis, deal execution. ^[15]

CORROBORATED Critical context: in January–February 2025 HSBC shut its mergers-and-acquisitions advisory and equity capital markets businesses in the UK, Europe and the Americas, keeping debt capital markets, leveraged finance and infrastructure finance — a deliberately "financing-led" model. ^[16] London IB at HSBC today means debt and financing with an enormous balance sheet behind it, not classic M&A.

OFFICIAL Transaction Banking is the engine room of the bank you heard about at the insight day — payments (Global Payments Solutions), custody and fund services (Securities Services), trade finance, issuer services. The intern work is product analytics, dashboards, process and client-service improvement. ^[17] Vital, moat-defining businesses — your Pictet custodian-chasing was literally the client side of this — but the junior seats are more product-and-process than relationship-led.

INFERRED Notice what this tour establishes: of everything HSBC runs, the roles whose daily content is building long-term client relationships with investment substance are exactly the two RM graduate schemes open to you. The one-application rule is forcing you toward the thing you already said you want.

Your decision, laid out

INFERRED My recommendation, in order:

1. Apply: Relationship Management – Private Bank – Graduate, London (by ~20 October, well before the 29 October close). Best content fit, London, funded Investment Advice Diploma with possible CFA support, sponsorship-friendly posting, and the longest runway of the three deadlines — but do not use the runway; rolling review rewards early files.
2. Same week: send the off-cycle eligibility email. If — unlikely — the answer is "yes, you're eligible," you then have a real decision between a graduate RM seat and an off-cycle shot at Markets/IB. Get the facts before the 15 October off-cycle close so the choice is yours to make.
3. Diarise two future doors: the CIB Graduate Insight Programme 2027 edition (this year's ran 4 September 2026 with applications 27 July–9 August; expect the same window in 2027) and the autumn 2027 off-cycle round (March 2028 start) as the recent-graduate route into London CIB desks. ^[18]
4. Do not burn the one application on Retail, and do not apply to anything penultimate-only hoping they will not notice — eligibility is checked at the first screen, and a rejected ineligible application still consumes your cycle.

OFFICIAL One logistical note: the application itself is light — a 10–15 minute online form, no cover letter culture — then the immersive online assessment (~90 minutes, the Cappfinity job simulation you have already studied in depth), then an assessment centre of roughly three hours. ^[19]

Everything in your existing playbooks — the job-simulation answer sheet, the video-interview playbook, the why-HSBC reasons — applies directly to this pipeline. You are not starting from zero; you are redeploying finished prep at a new target.

CORROBORATED Salary, since you will wonder: HSBC publishes no figures on any posting. Aggregator estimates put London graduate front-office pay roughly in the £45,000–£65,000 range with regional schemes lower; treat these as rumour-grade until an offer letter says otherwise. ^[20]
