

Corporate Access Services Intern — Round 1

Mon 7 Sep, 10:00 BST · WebEx · Katherine Hayes & Oliver Harvey · 30 min · CV + behavioural

The job in one line

You'd give PMs & analysts flawless, fast client service booking company meetings across EMEA — triaging huge demand, keeping the portal & invites perfect, and guarding who's meeting whom. Reliability is the product.

Your spine (assemble, don't script)

Why MLP: the multi-PM platform & its scale of access demand + self-starter culture. Why corporate access: I want the coordination/relationship engine, not a book of my own. Why me: organised, calm under pressure, service-minded — with examples.

The 5 signals they want

- Prioritisation by criteria (not 'work harder')
- Detail via a system (checks/lists)
- Composure in a live failure
- Client-service to senior people
- Discretion = a bright line, escalate

Answer framework

Story Qs (STAR, natural): Situation 1 line → your Action & method (80% of it) → Result (number if you can) → 1 line learned. 60–90s. Evidence > adjectives.

'What would you do' Qs: Clarify → state the trade-off/criteria out loud → act on what you own → escalate clashes & anything compliance/confidential → communicate & follow up.

If asked... → think

Question	Think
Why not investing?	I genuinely want the coordination/ops seat — no stepping-stone signals.
Deadline / juggling	My triage criteria + how I communicate trade-offs. Method, not heroics.
A mistake	Own it, surfaced it fast, fixed it, changed something. Never hide/blame.
Difficult senior person	Calm, understand their need, options, hold the line — client service.
Two PMs, one slot	Neutral criteria + escalate the clash. Don't pick a favourite quietly.
Feels over a compliance line	Pause, don't action it, check with manager/compliance.

Ask them (pick 2)

- How do you measure success — volume, PM satisfaction, or quality of access?
- When demand > slots, how do you decide who gets the meeting?
- What does a great intern here do differently?

Do / Don't

DO be concise, warm on camera, specific; escalate compliance; show a system.
DON'T ramble, ask about pay/hours, hint you'll leave for investing, improvise on confidentiality, list adjectives.

One line of commercial awareness to drop: Millennium runs an in-house desk because MiFID II (2018) made free broker access a priced 'inducement' — so the firm sources & tracks access itself to control cost, quality and compliance. · Prep-only aid; no AI in the room.
